Keeping Your Employees Healthy Never Stops

Investing in the health of your employees is not only beneficial for their overall well-being but also for your business. When your team is healthy, they are likely to be more productive, engaged and happy. Plus, it can also help you save on healthcare expenses and reduce absenteeism — call it a win-win.

Five chronic health conditions — high blood pressure, diabetes, smoking, physical inactivity and obesity — cost employers approximately \$36 billion a year due to employees missing work, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Preventable conditions like these are also a major contributor to the increasing cost of health insurance premiums and employee medical claims, which is why the health and wellness of your employees is a key priority for your business. Healthier employees lead to fewer sick days and less absenteeism, helping to reduce costs.
